2017 Annual Report

MUSIC MAKER RAG

RELIEF FOUNDATION

At age 23, Music Maker has established networks and partnerships that allow us to help artists in ways we scarcely could have foreseen in our early days. When unprecedented floods devastated the Baton Rouge-area of Louisiana in August of 2016, Music Maker sprang immediately into action. We reached out directly to legends like Henry Gray (who played piano for Howlin' Wolf) and Lee Allen Zeno, bassist for Buckwheat Zydeco, helping them replace gear and make up for lost gigs. Working with the Baton Rouge Blues Foundation, we also connected with dozens of other musicians and offered help with emergency funds, instruments, and gigs. Ultimately, Music Maker raised over $62,000 for flood victims.

Time and time again we've seen artists—with just a little bit of help—return to their music with renewed passion and vigor. Often what seems like a tiny gift—an instrument, a stipend for basic expenses, help with medical bills—paves the way for an artist to give abundantly in return, sharing musical gifts that bring people together, lift their spirits, and bring them closer to themselves and their history.

After Hurricane Katrina in 2005, Music Maker connected with displaced Bourbon Street luminary Pat “Mother Blues” Cohen, helping her get established in the North Carolina blues scene. When she lost her house to a fire this past year, we helped her get back on her feet once again.

Cohen is an irresistible performer and among the artists that have been drawing big crowds to The Bullpen—the downtown Durham club that opened in late 2016 in partnership with Music Maker. The club donates $1 for every beer sold to Music Maker, and offers a kind of home stage for Music Maker artists. It's been a huge success.

The club is now featuring live music three nights a week, and steadily bringing new audiences into the Music Maker world.

The Bullpen stage has also hosted some of Music Maker's more recent partner artists like Thomas Rhyant and the Glorifying Vines Sisters. Rhyant is a delightfully warm-hearted person and a captivating singer and guitarist. He's a gospel music veteran and a disciple of Sam Cooke, whose style he's integrated with his own. The Vines Sisters, from Eastern North Carolina, made incredibly funky gospel recordings in the 1970s and they've been going strong ever since. Our Community Coordinator, Cornelius Lewis, recently spent an exciting day with the sisters at the Rocky Mount, NC post office while the sisters got their first passports. Program Manager Aaron Greenwood had been working with them in the weeks prior to gather all the necessary information and paperwork. And now it's official. In August, they left the US for the first time, heading to perform shows in Lugano, Switzerland.

Artists like Rhyant and the Vines Sisters exemplify Music Maker's increasingly thriving relationship with gospel music. The Como Mamas, a gospel trio from Como, Mississippi, released Move Upstairs in May, their second record with the Daptone label. It's been getting great press from NPR, Rolling Stone, and other media heavyweights. The group has toured internationally and has an especially big following in France.

The success of the Como Mamas shows our musical development program in action.

Robert Finley & Dan Auerbach, Nashville, 2017 © Allyse Gafkjen

Our partnership with Daptone Records has helped the Como Mamas' career flourish in ways the three members never thought possible. The explosion of Robert Finley's career is another powerful example of what the musical development program can help set into motion. Finley comes from rural Bernice, Louisiana. At age 63 he released his first album, appropriately titled Age Don't Mean a Thing, in September of 2016. It garnered immediate critical praise and opened up tons of performing opportunities for him. The record also caught the attention of Dan Auerbach from the acclaimed rock duo The Black Keys. Auerbach flew Finley to Nashville to work on a very cool soundtrack for a graphic novel entitled Murder Ballads. In addition to the soundtrack, Finley has a new album in the bag, set for release in 2017 on Auerbach's Easy Eye Sound label with Nonesuch Records. We're excited to announce that Auerbach has now joined Music Maker's advisory board.

Your donations this year have helped people resiliently rebuild their lives in the wake of a devastating flood. They've helped new careers blossom for people of retirement age. They've helped a whole lot of deep-rooted music make its way to the ears, hearts and shaking rumps of appreciative fans. With your support and the continued growth of our partnerships and networks, the future looks full of wonderful things for the Music Maker family!

Music Maker raised $62,000 for Baton Rouge musicians in the wake of the devastating flooding that caused millions of dollars of damage and property loss in August. In February, Music Maker founder Tim Duffy, along with employees Cornelius Lewis and Aaron Greenhood, visited Baton Rouge to check in on some of the artists we helped. l t r: Corn Lewis, Larry Garner, Tim Duffy, Lil Ray Neal 2017 © A. Music Maker partnered with Girls Rock NC in creating the Music Maker Torchbearers program, which brought senior artists, including Lena Mae Perry and Pat “Mother Blues” Cohen to lecture and perform at their summer camp. Girls Rock NC’s mission is to empower girls and young women to become confident and engaged community members. Here, Pat “Mother Blues” Cohen performs for the campers. 2017 © News & Observer

Ernie Vincent from New Orleans, LA was one of many performers Music Maker brought from afar to perform at The Bullpen in Durham, NC this year. Others included Alabama Slim, Charles Hayes, Peewee Hayes, Cary Morin, Albert White, Cool John Ferguson, Lil Joe, Eddie Tigner, Abe Reid, The Pilgrim Wonders, and Robert Lee Coleman. # ★ Give a Little, Get a Little

Murder Ballads - A Graphic Novel

Murder Ballads by Gabe Soria is a graphic novel featuring an accompanying soundtrack by MM Partner Artist Robert Finley and Dan Auerbach. Released in Summer 2017 by Z2 Comics, this visually striking book tells the story of a failed music label head who through a chance encounter with a pair of musical brothers has one last chance to find his own redemption.

His efforts to make a career for the pair lead him down a path a crime, murder and mayhem. The story is brought to life not only by the richly colored illustrations of Paul Reinwand and Chris Hunt but also by the soundtrack crafted and performed by Dan Auerbach and Music Maker partner artist Robert Finley. Get your copy today!
